Energy alterations in patient with dizziness and how can we treat this condition?

Introduction: Dizziness can describe different sensations and the best way is to ask the patient to describe without saying the word dizzy. It could describe sometimes fatigue, anxiety, visual difficulty, weakness, vertigo, disequilibrium, presyncope or lightheadedness.

Purpose: the purpose of this study is to demonstrate that patient with this complaint have internal massive organ deficient in energy and the treatment of this condition, changing dietary aspects, rebalancing the internal energy using acupuncture and replenishing them using highly diluted medications is of paramount importance to treat the root of the problem and not just treating the symptoms.

Methods: through two case reports of patient with dizziness without any alteration in the laboratory exams. They searched for another kind of treatment using Chinese medicine's tools. I measured their internal massive organs energy (Liver, Heart, Spleen, Lung and kidney) using a crystal-pendulum.

Results: all organs were in the lowest level of energy, responsible for the production of internal energy to keep our health in harmony (Yin, Yang, Qi and Blood). Both patients were submitted to treatment using Chinese dietary counseling, auricular acupuncture with apex ear bloodletting and systemic acupuncture. Replenishment of all these organs were done using highly diluted medications according to the theory Constitutional Homeopathy of the Five Elements Based on Traditional Chinese Medicine and crystal-based medications for the entire life (because this energy deficiency is caused by the exposition to the electromagnetic waves. Both patients improved their condition quickly after the treatment done.

Conclusion: the conclusion of this study is that patients with dizziness can have internal massive organs energy deficient in energy and the treatment of this condition is of paramount importance to treat the root (energy imbalances) and not just the symptoms (dizziness itself).
